Senior Fellow, Macdonald-Laurier Institute, and co-Director of the Aboriginal People and Natural Resources research and policy program (a three year funded research initiative launched at the instigation of the Assembly of First Nations and with extensive private sector support)

Professor of History, University of Waterloo, 2011-2012

- Administrative leave, involving extensive international research focusing on how Northern and remote communities (from Scandinavia and Canada to Japan and across Europe) were responding to the economic and workforce challenges of the “new economy.”

Dean, Faculty of Arts, and Professor, Department of History,
University of Waterloo, 2006-2011

- Faculty had 7,000 students, 240 faculty and approximately 300 staff members, and a $50 million annual budget
- Led the establishment of the UW-Stratford campus, which focuses on global business and digital media. The undergraduate program, launched two years ago, was the largest first year program in the history of the University. The Stratford campus received a grant of land and $10 million from the City of Stratford, $10 million from the Government of Ontario and $5.5 million from the Centres for Excellence for the Commercialization of Research program.
- As part of a major expansion in graduate enrollment, established a Masters of Public Service program as a professional training opportunity.
- Reorganized the Faculty’s budget system to provide greater transparency and equity.
- Accelerated Tri-Council funding applications and Tri-Council success rates, resulting in the Faculty of Arts becoming one of the most successful in the country.
- Active participant in the establishment of the Balsillie School of International Affairs, a partnership with Wilfrid Laurier University and the Centre for International Governance Innovation
- Successful fund-raising activity that generated more than $100 million from private and government sources over five years, including seven endowed research chairs.
- Active engagement with the regional community, particularly in the areas of cultural programming and innovation initiatives.

Coates Holroyd Consulting, North Vancouver, B.C., 2004 –2006

- When funding issues delayed the progress of Quest University, and faced with my mother in law’s serious illness, we relocated to North Vancouver and worked on a variety of education, Aboriginal and regional development projects for two years before deciding to return to the university world.

Vice-President (Academic), Sea to Sky University, Squamish, B.C., 2004

- Due to my wife’s ill-health (now fully resolved), we left the University of Saskatchewan and relocated to British Columbia. I was involved in the early stages of the program design and institutional planning for what is now Quest University.

Dean, College of Arts and Science, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, 2001-2004.

- Oversaw the College of Arts and Science, one of the largest faculties in the country. At the time, the Faculty had 23 departments in the divisions of Humanities and Fine Arts, Social Science and Science, close to 8000 students, 300 faculty members and 500 staff members.

- Reorganized the Dean's office to expand our presence in student services and Aboriginal programming, including hiring the first Aboriginal Advisor to the Dean.
- Financial limitations limited the opportunity for new major new initiatives, but I oversaw major interdisciplinary projects in Indigenous Justice, Biotechnology and Toxicology.
- Restructured the facilities management and Information Technology arrangements, with a view to ensuring the College had the physical infrastructure needed to succeed.

Acting Provost and Vice-President (Academic), University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, 2002-2003.

- When the Provost went on administrative leave, I was asked to assume the position on a temporary basis.
- Dealt with a major crisis associated with the University of Saskatchewan, College of Medicine being placed on probation. Accelerated negotiations with the Government of Saskatchewan resulted in a major infusion of funding and support for the medical library.
- Led the creation of an Aboriginal planning document for the university;
- Led the creation of an International planning document for the university;
- Managed the implementation of the university's new integrated planning process.

Dean, Faculty of Arts and Professor of History, University of New Brunswick at Saint John, Saint John, New Brunswick, July 1997-2000.

- Developed strong ties with the City of Saint John and was involved in a comprehensive community development process.
- Developed new interdisciplinary undergraduate programs, including degrees in Communication Studies and Sports Psychology.
- Facilitated greater interdisciplinary engagement, particularly with the Faculty of Business.
- Launched a "Career Ready" initiative to align undergraduate students' experience with the job market and secured over $400,000 in government funding to support post-graduation career opportunities for Arts students.
- Instigated an externally funded government-business-university collaboration that supported six students per year engaging in international business development and university recruiting activities.

Professor of History and Chair, Department of History, University of Waikato, Hamilton, New Zealand, 1995-1997.

Vice-President (Academic) and Professor of History, University of Northern British Columbia, Prince George, B.C., 1992-1995.

Professor, Department of History, University of Victoria, Victoria, B.C., 1986-1992.

Associate Professor, Department of History, Brandon University, Brandon, Manitoba, 1983-1986.

Sessional Lecturer, Department of History, University of British Columbia, 1982-1983.

Sessional Lecturer, Department of History, Langara Campus, Vancouver Community College, Vancouver, B.C., 1980-1982.
