2007-2008:

HIST 288.3 Co-operatives in the World

Term: 2007-8 T2
Format: 80-minute lecture, 2/week, 13 weeks, plus student

“mini-conferences” (see notes)
Enrolment: 33 (limit 50)
Teaching assistance/markers: none
Special notes: Major research paper; group projects and presentations; in-class discussions

Notes: (1) My second-year courses require major research papers of 3,000 words. Students develop papers based on proposals which I grade and give back with pointers about topic, approach, argument, and bibliography. Essays are graded with comments given to students about literary aspects, logic, use of evidence, and correctness or completeness of information. Rewrites are permitted and are similarly graded.

(2) My second-year courses in addition require a group research project with a written report and oral presentation to the class. These projects are based on primary information with a stress on research to locate hard-to-find sources. I schedule student mini-conferences outside of lecture hours for the presentations. Groups are given grades and feedback about both the written and oral portions of their work.

(3) There are in-class discussions about readings throughout the course, as well as periodic in-class assignments, usually to write a short essay. Every student receives a participation grade based on spoken and written participation in class.

(4) Course evaluations show that students consistently rate my courses and teaching somewhat higher than the departmental average. Many find the workload a little heavy. A frequent comment is that the instructor makes the material interesting.

- Written for the sixtieth anniversary of federated Co-operatives Limited, in consultation with an editorial committee which intensively reviewed the manuscript. (The committee included Dr. Harold Baker of the University of Saskatchewan, plus co-operative educators and persons of long experience with the co-operative system.) Over 6,800 copies of two editions were distributed in western Canada, including over 900 purchased by the Saskatchewan government for presentation to school libraries, and 500 purchased by the Alberta government. After a second printing of the corporate edition, the publisher declared the book out of print in 1990. The book has also been translated into Mandarin for distribution in China.
