

HOW DO WE GET THERE?

FACING THE SKILLS GAP WITH A REVITALIZED ROLE FOR POST-SECONDARY ONLINE EDUCATION IN SASKATCHEWAN

A JOHNSON SHOYAMA ONEd PRESENTATION

---

TUESDAY, JUNE 15, 2021 / 12:00 - 1:30 PM

Delivered via Zoom. Click here to register.

---

Online education has often been heralded as an innovation that will help prepare graduates for the twenty-first century workforce; but is it that easy? Workforce skill gaps and the unprecedented pace of change in workplaces and world are making it clear that today's graduates need specialized job-specific skills as well as broad competencies, including dealing with ambiguity and facing wicked problems. This OnEd Panel will explore what online educators can do to prepare students to successfully contribute to the workforce, build meaningful careers in a shifting landscape, and help craft solutions to the big challenges faced by business, institutions, and the world. We will hear from a diverse panel to learn more about where to start in preparing our students for the twenty-first century workforce by ensuring they have the skills and competencies needed for success.

The Online Education (OnEd) Network is a group of experts—and aspiring experts—working towards creating top-notch online courses for the university community.

For more information or to be added to the OnEd mailing list, please contact Martin Boucher (martin.boucher@usask.ca) or Emmy Neuls (emmy.neuls@usask.ca).

PRESENTED BY:

Candy Ho
*Assistant Professor,
Integrative Career and Capstone Learning, College of Arts, University of the Fraser Valley*

Wendy James
*Manager, Professional and Curriculum Development,
Gwenna Moss Centre for Teaching and Learning*

Alastair MacFadden
*Executive-in-Residence,
Johnson Shoyama
Graduate School of Public Policy*

Steve McLellan
*CEO, Saskatchewan
Chamber of Commerce*

JOHNSON
SHOYAMA

www.schoolofpublicpolicy.sk.ca